The owners of the Properties of the Pacific real estate firm are joining Luxury Homes International in Honolulu as an official team.

Sharon Au and Gaylien Hall, co-founders and brokers-in-charge of Properties of the Pacific, will join with Luxury Homes International, which is based in Downtown Honolulu, along with two other agents.

"Properties of the Pacific has built an outstanding reputation in the Honolulu luxury market," Au said in a statement. "By joining Luxury Homes as a team, we combine a wealth of experience and market knowledge that aligns perfectly with our commitment to excellence."

Hall said the move will also allow them to expand their global reach and boost their marketing capabilities.

"This partnership is a win-win for our clients, providing them with greater exposure and access to a premier network of luxury buyers and sellers," she said.

Principal Broker at Luxury Homes International Principal Broker Patrick O'Neill called Au and Hall "marquee players" in the local residential real estate industry. Au, Hall, and the two other members of their team join the 50 agents at O'Neill's firm, which is the sixth largest on Oahu, according to PBN research.

"Sharon and Gaylien are among the most respected brokers in Hawaii, and I am thrilled to be working with them," O'Neill said in a statement. "This collaboration brings together two powerhouse brands in luxury real estate. We are all very excited about the opportunities that will allow us to serve our clients at an even higher level."
